

Reflections ... On the Edge of 70

May, 2010

Roger Kyle died on April 15, 2010. He died suddenly and unexpectedly. He had run 10 miles just one day prior. Roger was a runner for all seasons. He was a veteran and a seasoned runner who had run his share of marathons, duathlons, and triathlons. Roger had a special gift of being able to run fast in spite of his large frame ~ or maybe because of it.

Roger passed through the final chute and joined Rick Jackson, Jim Dixon, Campbell Neel, Bud Roche, and many others who have gone before. He runs with the angels now.

Godspeed Roger!

And may the wind be always at your back.

Don Mega

megarunner83@verizon.net